My Pregnancy
Journey

39 Weeks
NINE MONTHS VISIT

What to Expect at This Visit

- Every Visit
- At the beginning of every visit, our team will obtain a urine sample, measure your weight and vital signs, and update your pharmacy, medication list and medical history.
 - Your provider will review your medical history and discuss any questions or concerns you have and review your progress together.

- This Visit
- Cervical exam, if needed
 - Abdominal exam to check baby’s position
 - Listen to fetal heartbeat
 - Discuss your birthing preferences

- Growth & Development
- 39-week size: a bag of flour, about 18–20 inches.
 - Regular sleep patterns are developing that will continue after birth.
 - Baby is still putting on fat that will be needed to regulate body temperature in the outside world.
 - Kick counts – Tracking the baby’s movement while lying down on your side helps you become aware of how your baby is doing. When tracking kick counts, note the time, after the baby has moved ten times, note the time again. Do this once a day, every day. After a few days of regular counting, you’ll notice that your baby has a regular pattern for how long it takes to get to ten movements. This is what is normal for your baby. If your baby hasn’t moved at least ten times in two hours from when you started counting, or you notice a decrease in movement from their usual pattern, please notify your healthcare provider immediately.

Changes to Expect

- Physical
- You may experience increased shortness of breath, fatigue, swelling, joint pain, hemorrhoids, leg cramps, groin or pelvic pain and other common discomforts until delivery.
 - You may pass your mucus plug at once or over the course of several days. This is normal and does not indicate the onset of labor.
 - After delivery:
 - You will experience vaginal bleeding which is called lochia. It is normal for this discharge to be bright or dark red in color initially postpartum, but it lightens in color and flows to pink or brown tinged, then yellow to white. Keep in mind, this varies for each woman. If you are soaking more than one pad an hour, please contact your healthcare provider immediately.
 - Hormones, surgery, medications, dehydration and decreased physical activity may make your bowel function slower after birth. The first bowel movement may be uncomfortable.

- Emotional
- Discuss how you’re feeling about childbirth with your support person.
 - After delivery, you may experience sadness, crying, irritability, mood swings or impatience. These symptoms are known as “Baby Blues,” which should only last 2–3 weeks postpartum. The Baby Blues occur in 9 out of 10 women who deliver, due to the extreme hormonal changes. If your symptoms last longer than 2–3 weeks after delivery or are severe, please notify your healthcare provider.
 - If you have scary or upsetting thoughts that don’t go away or you have little interest in doing things that you used to enjoy, contact your healthcare provider immediately.
 - If you feel out of touch with reality or if you hear or see things that other people don’t, call 911 or go to the nearest ER.

Write down how you’re feeling emotionally during this stage of your pregnancy:

Comfort Tips

Continue to wear disposable breast pads or purchase reusable breast pads that may be washed if you are leaking from your nipples.

Avoid using soaps or creams on your breasts.

Continue eating small, well-balanced meals with increased fiber and water intake.

While sitting, have your feet raised. You may find wearing support hose and comfortable shoes may help.

A period of rest during the day may be helpful for fatigue and mood support.

When lying down to rest, it may help to lay on one side and cross your upper leg over a pillow.

Prenatal massage may help alleviate pain and promote restful sleep.

Accidents Can Happen; Prevent Infant Falls

- To keep your baby safe, place the baby in the bassinet when you become sleepy to prevent infant drops.
- Anyone caring for the baby should be fully alert and focused on safety.
- If you are taking pain medication or things that may make you sleepy, ask your nurse for assistance.

Wellness

Lifestyle

- Substance use, including tobacco, vaping (e-cigarettes), alcohol and marijuana is not advised during pregnancy and can have negative health outcomes for you and your baby. If you need help quitting, please discuss a plan with your provider.

Health & Nutrition

- You and baby are in the final stages preparing for birth. Remember to remain healthy and active as advised by your provider.
- It is recommended to consume 8-10 cups of water daily.

Medications

- Remember to take your prenatal vitamin daily during your pregnancy and while you're breastfeeding.

Plan for Baby

- Remember, it is important to choose a pediatrician prior to delivery and then schedule a pediatric appointment upon discharge.
- An installed car seat is required prior to discharge. For more information, please visit www.safekidsgeorgia.org.

Classes

- One of your last chances to tour the hospital before your stay.
